JUDGE MONSARRAT AND SHERIFF ROSE

Row Breaks Out When Judge Releases Great Northern's Fifth Officer

MAN ARRESTED ON WIFE'S CHARGE OF NON-SUPPORT

Turned Loose By Court On Own Recognizance and Pilikia Starts At Once

The release on his own recognizance by Police Judge Monsarrat of James C. Warrington, fifth officer of the liner Great Northern, who was arrested yesterday on a charge of non-support preferred by his wife, is cause of a row which has broken out between the judge on one side, and the police department on the Each side is indulging in recriminations and charging the other with dereliction of duty.

Warrington was placed under arrest by Detective A. E. Carter a few minutes before time for the Great North ern to sail, and was hurried to the police court. There Judge Monsarrat, at the request, he says, of Prosecuting Charles F. Chillingworth Attorney turned the prisoner loose on his own recognizance, Chillingworth offering to be responsible for the man's appear ance in court on the occasion of the next visit of the liner to this port.

The police charge that a grave in-stice was done Warrington's pretty part-Hawaiian wife who, they say, is left practically destitute.

Detective Carter is credited by Deputy Sheriff Asch with saying that Warington told him he was not coming back to Honolulu and that he made a mistake in coming here on the Great Northern and should have stayed in San Francisco.

Warrington, according to Sheriff Charles H. Rose, was employed in Honolulu about two months ago by the Inter Island Steam Navigation Company, and at that time met a young part-Hawaiian girl who was living at Kawaiabao seminary. Rose says he lived with the girl until the Y. M. C. A. authorities discovered that the couple were not married and obliged them to have a ceremony performed.

"Mrs. Warrington came to me Sat said the sheriff, "and complained that her husband had refused to provide for her, and that since their marriage he had given her only fifteen I advised her to swear to a I tried to locate Judge Monsarrat Sat. commercial construction. urday and Sunday, but was unable to get in touch with him. Monday the should have been enough evidence to detain Warrington."

Judge Monsarrat passes the buck back to the police department. Likewise, he flatly contradicts statements made by Rose and by Carter, and says Carter's reputation for veracity does not amount to much anyway.

"If the sheriff was so interested in the case," Judge Monsarrat said. Judge Monsarrat said, why didn't he come into the courtroom and submit his evidence? 1 signed a warrant for Warrington's arrest at ten minutes past nine, at the request of his wife. She did not tell me whether her husband was an officer or a passenger on the Great North-

Judge Monsarrat added that he released the man at the request of Prose cuting Attorney Chillingworth, who enting Attorney Chillingworth, who offered to be responsible for Warring ton's appearing to answer the charge PERSIA REPLIES TO when the Great Northern returned to

"Had I known," the judge added. "that Warrington had made a state ment to Detective Carter to the effect that he would not return to Honolulu. I certainly would have detained him. As a matter of fact, I doubt very much if he ever made such a statement to Detective Carter. Besides, I must say that Carter's reputation for veracity is not of the best.

Carter was in the court room as arresting officer in the case and it was his duty to inform the court of any such statement by Warrington. If the statement was made after Warrington was released from custody, it was still further Carter's duty to rearrest him.

Sheriff Rose did not try to get in touch with me either Saturday or Sunday. I was either at my home or at the Pacific Club Saturday, and Sanday I met Sheriff Rose on the beach at Waikiki. He did not tell me any thing about the case at that time. Instead, he woke up at the last minute to a realization of his duty and expected the court to read his mind, the mind of the police officers and the mind of Mrs. Warrington, and then render a decision accordingly."

Upholds the Law Although the supreme court had previously upheld constitutionality of the Mann White Slave law, the question of whether it prohibits interstate transportation of women only for commercialized vice or applies to mere personal immoral escapades having no element of commercialism or coercion has been disputed ever since the laws enactment.

Interpretation by the Supreme Court of the disputed point was asked in the celebrated Diggs-Caminetti cases and in the cast of L. T. Hays, of Alva, Oklahoma. In all three cases, the gov-

WASHINGTON, January 16-The government of Persia, replying to the note sent out by President Wilson to the belligerents and neutrals respecting the possibility of a near peace through a frank announcement by the belliger-ents of the objects for which they are fighting, expresses the hope that the uggestion of the American executive may be successful. Persia, the reply points out, is didirectly interested in the ending of the war, inasmuch as she is one of the neutral nations suffering through the invasion of her borders by the armies of the warring Powers.

DUTCH TAKE SUBMARINE

LONDON, January 16-A German bmarine was seized by a Dutch warship yesterday and taken into Flushing, where it was at first announced that the U-boat would be interned as a violator of the neutral waters of the Netherlands. A late despatch last night abnounced that the underwater craft had not been held, however, After her case had been investigated the Dutch authorities decided that the German craft could not be held. She was accordingly escorted to the three-mile limit and liberated.

Son-in-law of President Wilson Involved in "Leak" By the Broker From Boston

WASHINGTON, January 15-Thomas W. Lawson of Boston sprung the biggest sensation of all those in the 'leak'' hearings today when he gave startling testimony concerning his charges that reports were affort connecting high Washington officials with stock market gambling on information

Palmer Woods Mentioned and Soapbox Barron Fancies That Duty Calls Him

The question of who is to be Honolulu's postmaster is one that is agitating Democratic circles. There are several aspirants for the position, but none of them, so far as can be ascer-tained, seems to have the inside track.

The Democratic central committee is reported to have cabled to Washingto recommendation of the appointment of W. C. Peterson, the present acting gained from confidential diplomatic postmaster. But that the Democratic sentral committee of Hawaii has any influence at the national capital is > of the opposing faction do not hesitate to say that the endorsement of the com-mittee is almost sure to be fatal to the hunces of the endorsee. The candidacy of Palmer P. Woods is an active one, though it has not been much talked about of late. It is known that Woods was slated for the appointment some months ago, but Hawaii not a member of the central ommittee-went to Washington and knifed him, with the result that no appointment was made. Woods' chancel are still regarded as being very good and it would not surprise his friends to

for the appointment. Meantime, it is reported from Wash ngton that Charles (Soapbox) Barros of noisy memory is there, working for the job, as he has been working for several years. After his last disap-pointment, caused by the appointment of William F. Young as postmaster, Barron said in San Francisco to Barron sald in San Francisco to a men ber of The Advertiser staff that he didn't want the postmastership any-way; he had something a good deal better and was making too much money to bother with a political job. Soaphon seems to have changed his disgruntled misd since then, and has concluded that his country needs him and duty calls.

Commissioner Believes Power To Dispose of Land Should Continue With Congress

The bill introduced in congress by Delegate Kuhio to amend the Organic Act so that the legislature of Hawaii shall have the disposition of all public lands, instead of the power lying with congress as at present, is not looked upon with much favor by Land Comnissioner B. G. Rivenburgh.

"I can't see any particular use in such a change," said Rivenburgh yesterday. "As the law is at present, congress never takes any action regarding the public lands of Hawaii except upon recommendation of the legislature, and it has always acted in acterday. cordance with the recommendations of our legislature.

'Having the final discosition of the public lands of the Territory vested in congress is merely a safeguard and makes the legislature inclined to examine carefully any proposed changes in the land laws or the disposition of any public lands.

"Several years ago when John Mc-Crosson went to congress with an appliditch on Maui, congress refused to grant it until it should be approved by the legislature. McCrosson came back to Hawaii and got the next legislature to approve the franchise and then congress granted it without any trouble.

"If the Delegate's bill became law, and it happened some time that we had a legislature controlled by the sugar interests of the Territory, the legisla-ture, if the disposition of the public lands lay with it, might turn over everything to the planters, to the great injury of the homesteaders. Or, on the other hand, if we happened some time to have a legislature hostile to the sugar interests, it might take away all their leases and turn the whole thing over to the small farmers.

things as they are. I can't see any particular value in Cupid's bill.''

TWO LADS ARRESTED

Two part-Hawaiian boys, respective y fifteen and thirteen years old, were arrested yesterday by Probation Officer Leal and taken to the detention home. They are charged with stealing bicyc les at Fort Shafter. They will appear before Judge Whitney tomorrow. Leal also took into custody yesterday a Chinese boy and a Porto Rican, both of whom are said to be habitual tru ants. The Chinese boy has dodged school since last June. The Porto Rican boy, Leal says, has been inducing other boys to play hookey.
